Question: The LOI Requirements and the Selection Criteria put an emphasis on the prime's project manager. Can co-project managers be named (and given equal weight in the selection process); one from the prime provider and one from the sub consultant?

Answer: No, TxDOT recognizes only one Project Manager (The Prime Provider's Project Manager). Even if there is a joint venture, only one Project Manager is identified. Below is the Letter of Interest (LOI) requirement that was posted in the Notice of Intent (NOI) for this contract as a point of reference.

Letter of Interest Requirements:

The name, phone and fax number, email and mailing address of the prime provider's project manager (who may be replaced during the selection and award process only by another person proposed for the prime provider's team, as approved by the director of TxDOT's Design Division) and key personnel who will work on the contract. Under a joint venture agreement, one project manager must be identified to represent the joint venture as the prime.
